Company Ranking Based on Number of Dancers

November 2025

Overview of Number of Dancer Rankings (NODR) for FY 2023's "Largest 150" Compared to Expenditure Ranking (ER)

Ballet companies traditionally rank their dancers from Corps de Ballet to Soloist to Principal. Several companies, such as the Joffrey Ballet, choose an unranked system for company members.

Within that larger structure are various titles that can sort rank into more specific categories. These include Demi-Soloist, First Soloist, Coryphée, Principal Character Dancer, and Étoile (and in Europe, even further distinctions within Étoile). In Europe/Russia, there are honorary titles such as Prima Ballerina Assoluta.

Entry-level dancers also have different nomenclatures: apprentices, aspirants, and trainees. It can be challenging to rank dancers across the sector, as definitions and categories are applied differently from company to company. The professional status of these entry-level dancers can also differ. Some companies consider trainees company members on salary, some receive a stipend for performance, and some are still students. While most apprentices are company members, additional confusion may occur when companies use trainee and apprentice interchangeably or identify student dancers as apprentices. As Dance Data Project® continues to advocate for industry transparency, we will continue to shed light on the varied levels of employment and compensation in the field, essential data points for artists embarking on their professional lives.

Dance Data Project® created an initial exploration of the relationship between overall budget by expenditure of the "Largest 150" classically inspired ballet companies and their roster of dancers to build a structure for future data collection in other areas. Further exploration may include data on the number of weeks under contract, dancer compensation in relation to region and living expenses, and the relative percentage of dancer salary to executive and artistic staff compensation, company senior administrators' salary, and total company expenditure.

Seven main categories of dancers were identified: "Main Company," "Character Artists," "Second Company," "Apprentices," "Junior/Second Company Apprentices," "Trainees," and "Aspirants". Additionally, an "Other" column was included for those titles that were difficult to place into one of the seven categories. Guest artists were not included in this analysis.

Out of FY 2023's "Largest 150" U.S. ballet companies<sup>1</sup>, Dance Data Project® found the number of dancers employed and/or enrolled in trainee programs for 116 companies for the 2022-2023 season, 119 companies for the 2023-2024 season, and 121 companies for the 2024-2025 season.

A comparison of the number of dancers and expenditure ranking revealed:

- From the 2022-2023 to 2024-2025 season, the average number of main company dancers for the "Largest 1-50" are 30 for the '22-'23 and '23-'24 season and 29 for the '24-'25 season. Comparatively, the averages for the "Largest 1-10" are 57, 55, and 54, respectively by season. For the "Largest 51-100", the averages are 16 for the first two seasons and 17 for the last. For the "Largest 101-150", the averages are 12 for the '22-'23 and '24-'25 season and 11 for the '23-'24 season.
- From the 2022-2023 to 2024-2025 season, 38%, 41%, and 41% of the "Largest 150", respectively by season, had 20 main company dancers or more. In comparison, 87%, 79%, and 85% of the "Largest 150" had 10 main company dancers or more.

<sup>1</sup> Expenditure rankings for FY 2023 are used as it is DDP's most recent and complete data set. Many ballet companies' FY 2024 990 reports were not available (in part due to radically different fiscal years) by the completion date of the 2025 Ranking Report.

Methodology and Limitations

Dance Data Project® utilizes budgets from FY 2023 to obtain the most complete budget samples. However, the number of dancers counted is based on the traditional season used by classically inspired companies (for example, the 2022-2023 season). When researching, DDP used sources as close to October of the respective season, as company websites are typically updated for the season by this month. However, where websites or program books were archived, absolute accuracy on dancer count was difficult.

Additionally, the collection of dancer counts was limited by archived websites available via the WayBack Machine or by the existence of past program books published online. Also, as dancers may leave during the season, the collected numbers may differ from rosters reported at other times in the season. While ballet companies, WayBack Machine, and Dance Data Project® each take every measure to avoid human error, DDP acknowledges the possibility of such error appearing in roster data obtained from organizations' websites or other published sources.

Dance Data Project® does not currently have access to contract agreements between artists and companies or any specifics about dancer salaries. Thus, this initial "snapshot" does not consider the number of weeks dancers are contracted in a year. This information is critical in assessing pay/compensation patterns as more dancers + more weeks under contract may well represent a higher percentage of overall budget. Dance Data Project®'s goal with this study is to increase transparency within the industry.

NOTE: We would like to thank our friends at Ballet Help Desk for the suggestion and their important work. DDP relies on informed feedback from the field to better serve the needs of the dance community.

Company Ranking Based on Number of Dancers

Table 1: 2024-2025 Season Count of Number of Dancers Per Company

Table 4 shows the 2024-2025 dancer counts for each company. They are organized by FY 2023's expenditure ranking, ordered from highest to lowest ranking. The acronym "N/A" represents an unknown count of dancers for that season in that category. If all categories have a value "N/A", no information about dancer counts could be found on the company for the season. If there is a "0", it indicates either that the company does not have that category or that they had no dancers in that category for that year.

Company Ranking Based on Number of Dancers

Table 5 shows the 2023-2024 dancer counts for each company. They are organized by FY 2023's expenditure ranking, ordered from highest to lowest ranking. The acronym "N/A" represents an unknown count of dancers for that season in that category. If all categories have a value "N/A", no information about dancer counts could be found on the company for the season. If there is a "0", it indicates either that the company does not have that category or that they had no dancers in that category for that year.

Table 3: 2022-2023 Season Count of Number of Dancers Per Company

Table 6 shows the 2022-2023 dancer counts for each company. They are organized by FY 2023's expenditure ranking, ordered from highest to lowest ranking. The acronym "N/A" represents an unknown count of dancers for that season in that category. If all categories have a value "N/A", no information about dancer counts could be found on the company for the season. If there is a "0", it indicates either that the company does not have that category or that they had no dancers in that category for that year.
